One of the notable shipments soon to be made to the Hawaiian Islands will be an immense pump, the largest ever constructed on the Pacific Coast. It is now being built at the Risdon Iron Works for a sugar plantation at Kihei, and will cost the sugar company considerably more than $100,000. The capacity of the pump will be 20,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours. The pump proper is to be stationed at the bottom of a well 350 feet deep, with the bollers on the surface of the ground. The engine is of the triple-expansion kind, with four cylinders, two 2f which are low-pressure.—S. F. two of which are low-pressure.-S. F.
